The Nubian Past

Synopsis

This cutting-edge synthesis of the archaeology of Nubia and Sudan from prehistory to the nineteenth century AD is the first major work on this area for over three decades. Drawing on results of the latest research and developing new interpretive frameworks, the area which has produced the most spectacular archaeology in sub-Saharan Africa is examined here by an author with extensive experience in this field. The geographical range of the book extends through the Nubian north, the Middle Nile Basin, and includes what has become the modern Sudan. Using period-based chapters, the region's long-term history is traced and a potential for a more broadly framed and inclusive 'historical archaeology' of Sudan's more recent past is explored. This text breaks new ground in its move beyond the Egyptocentric and more traditional culture-histories of Nubia, often isolated in Africanist research, and it relocates the early civilizations and their archaeology within their Sudanic Africa context. This is a captivating study of the area's history, and will inform and enthrall all students and researchers of Archaeology and Egyptology.

Customer Reviews

Edwards is a master in portraying this wonderful region of the world in the best of lights. I have never seen such research and seriousness in references and compilations of all of this information in such a readable and enjoyable way. Simply, it is a wonderful read and great information that you will find nowhere but in this book. It's a two thumbs up. Be well Arif Gamal author
