A Martyr Speaks To David Duke

Synopsis

This book compares 2 men, and their books. The Martyr was John Alan Coey, a graduate of Ohio State University. His parents named his journal, A Martyr Speaks, after he was martyred defending the White race, in Rhodesia. He went there, instead of going to Vietnam. While American patriots, like Duke, were frustrated by Washington's conduct of the war, Coey saw, with great insight, the true nature of the Vietnam War. He saw, in 1972, that the Antichrist enemy was in Washington, D.C., and on college campuses. The purpose of that war was to kill our national spirit. Coey saw that the Communist religion of the Internationalists was dedicated to the destruction of European Civilization, in general, and Christianity, in particular. This is the real war that continues, today. In A Martyr Speaks to David Duke, the author discusses the "Christian Holocaust" of the 20th Century, BUT without the defeatism of secularists like Duke. Duke's book, My Awakening, is full of suppressed information that reveals the war against the White Race. But, in the last chapter, Duke's secular fantasy about the ultimate White victory is ridiculous. He very well documents, and identifies the enemy without offering a real solution. We cannot defeat the Antichrist through politics. Hence, the need for the book, A Martyr Speaks to David Duke. This is "Dialectical Christianity."

Customer Reviews

I thought the author's name was Joseph Self-Centered. His babbling quickly became annoying. I had hoped to get a better picture of Cooley but it was totally lacking. I did not bother to finish it.
